

Our Indiana Telephone privacy Act has been popular with the citizens. Federal regulations should not supercede the laws of an individual state. I used to receive between 6-10 calls per evening, most of them at dinnertime! I cherish my privacy and cannot imagine having to return to the past with the constant harrassment of telemarketers. Our state allows people to opt to have the telemarketers if they choose. Besides, I am getting "spammed" enough via e-mail without having to go back to telephone sales pitches!

Please consider our current law and do not overturn this great initiative!
